PROFILE

For the past two decades, I have focused my efforts on interface development, putting user advocacy at the forefront, and providing a pleasant user experience for people with disabilities.

My purpose is to bring my knowledge and experience to teams and projects where I can have a meaningful impact.

WORK EXPERIENCES

SEPT 2020 – CURRENT

Freelance at FEDbySandrine, Auckland, NZ

- o Supported agency team on over a dozen of projects integrating designs, resolving issues, adding updates, and upgrading boilerplate starter.
- o Developed an interactive touch-screen experience for a museum exhibition
- o Reviewed and strategised UX for better conversion of a SASS

Accessibility specialist, contract at Access Advisors, Christchurch, NZ

- o Audit websites, apps, mockups, designs, and various user experiences from digital to the real world
- o Provide WCAG assessments with descriptive issue impact and how to fix them
- o Advise design and developer teams during project conception
- o Research and write white papers, presentations, and a developer training course
- o Peer review and mentor team members on technical details

Sandrine not only has extensive knowledge about digital accessibility, but also a way of imparting that knowledge that is clear and concise.

— Trent Morgan, Web Developer at Big Fish Creative

MAY 2015 – AUG 2020

Digital Arts Network, Auckland, NZ

- o Led the front-end of Tourism New Zealand website
- o Worked closely with designers to create new components, templates, campaigns, and refactoring UI
- o Evolved existing UI into a design system with components library and documentation of coding conventions
- o Reported, advised, and implement UX and coding strategies for consistency and sustainability.
- o Assessed and resolved legacy code and responsive issues
- o Worked closely with back-end developers to prototype and implement new features ('near me' map, 360 videos campaign, mobile mega nav menu, ...)

Sandrine brings a level of excellence through her craft and dedication to standards and good practice. Her diligence and commitment to the quality of her outputs ensures the quality never slips.
